THE PUFFED-UP 400.

A Gotham Episode With a Pittsburg End to it and a Moral.

AN ESCORT WHO CAN'T EQUIVOCATE

Denman Thompson Still Drawing, and the Gondoliera Vice Versa.

TOO MUCH BRITISH TALENT WASTED.

Sullivan, the Slugger, and a Little Gossip About the Baseball Snit.

A New York correspondent gives two Pittsburg views of New York swelldom, as personified by the "400." He also tells why "The Gondoliers," as an opera, is voted a failure. In a little chat with John L. Sullivan, he draws forth what the big fellow will and won't do. Finally the writer says the Brotherhood has the long end of baseball sentiment in New York.

(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATCH.) NEW YORK, January 18 .- Two Pittsburg gentlemen, whose faces are very familiar to Fifth avenue habitues, accompanied by ludy friends, evidently East Enders, were dining in the Cafe Normandie, in Fourteenth street, last evening. I sat near them and from the drift of the conversation I involuntarily learned that they were discussing the subject of New York's "400." The fair members of the party were taking sides with the McAllister clique, and | him. expressed thereselves to the effect that the neme of their lives would be reached were they only members of the swell social set. One of the gentlemen, whose characteristics do not savor of the strict social requirements now in vogue to maintain one's position as the possessor of gilded crest and plumed ancestry, interrupted the ladies by this startling speech "Oh, this 400 business is tiresome! They're nothing but the descendants of a lot of greasy old Dutch Knickerbockers, who came over here wearing wooden shoes and hair plaited down their backs, with the malodorous scent gain anything by their existence, commercially or otherwise, so change the sub-ject. Waiter, check, please!"

That man is "business" from away back, and no Anglo-maniacal fads worry him.

PRESE THEATRICAL GOSSIP. Everybody goes to the theater in New York, there being at least 40 places of amusement throws open to the public nightly, and Broadway is a bustling throng from o'clock until 1, or even later, where a theater party has chatted long and late over luncheon at Del's or Sherry's. I had occasion to go to see Denman Thompson's "Old Homestead" recently, and I find it has lost none of its old-time grip on the lovers of the realistic stage country life. Nothing could be more natural, and I am sure that the old Allegheny county farmers who have grown rich unconsciously must enjoy such an oldtime repetition of scenes in their boyhood days on the farm, as is truthfully portrayed in "The Old Homestead."

Gilbert and Sullivan's latest opera, "The Gondoliers," is torn to shreds by the press, which is all on account of D'Oyly Carte's bad selection of conceited English singers to present it to us Americans. True it is that we will stand a vast amount of imposition, where there is a semblance of a show for the money expended, but when it comes to a case of "laughing up the sleeve" in full view of us, there's where we draw a sign—
"Danger." Such is the verdict here of "The Gondoliers." It is simply rehash and a conglomerated mass of Sullivan's weakest
"These Indians," said Mr. Baker tonight, in speaking of the proposed bill, "are musical efforts. It is already on the wane, and I hear that the English managers intend calling it off very soon, in order to save it, if possible, from utter condemnation and relegation to the slough of desuctude.

MISTAREN IDEAS OF SULLIVAN. In a downtown sporting rendezvous, the other night, I had the pleasure of meeting and chatting with Prof. John Lawrence Sullivan, Boston's proud exponent of Fistania. I was introduced by the sporting editor of a leading daily here, and the big-boned and big-hearted fellow arose with extended hand, and a really courteous how-depleased-to-know-you air simultaneously followed. He has not that soltness of voice or gentility which are qualities of the ultra-social gentleman, but his manner is far from the published reports classifying him as "a man with brutal looks and surly manners." He is just the opposite, and is genial, open-hearted to a fault with his friends. In this may lie the secret of his shortcomings, as money in his pockets is always an incentive to listen to the ominous sound of "a pop and a fizz." He is the ideal picture of physique, and is the peer of all pugilists in the world. He told me that he would not fight Jackson until the Mississippi trouble had ended. "Then," said he, "I won't nee him for less than $25,000, winner to take all. I can whip him, which I have never doubted, after which I shall retire from the ring forever.' While the big fellow was talking he carelessly picked up a loose champagne cork, and taking it between his thumb and first fingers of both hands, snapped it like a brittle stick of candy. This is a very difficult trick, requiring an immense amount of OF INTEREST TO BALL PLAYERS. The injunction of John B. Day and others against John M. Ward, of the Brotherhood Buseball League, to restrain him from playing with any other club was the exclusive theme of conversation in Nick Engle's resort last night. The Brotherhood supporters were in the majority; in fact, it was ilmost unanimous-possibly with the exception of James Murtrie, the manager of was sore at the world of baseball for its hearty support of the "boys" against the National League, as his arguments did not weigh much against such an army of players

Ward, Keefe, Gore, Kelly and a host of others were present, and, naturally, they claimed: "One of m felt confident over Judge Howland's brilliant presentation of their case. The salient points were that the player under the League agreement was a victim of "boycotta," "trusts" and "slavery." Joseph H. Chonte, for the plaintiff, dwelt on the Ward "reserve" entirely, and said that it meant what it always had, and there was no change in its meaning in the contract as drawn up by Ward himself. Although an able argument, the points were not so strong in the abstract as Judge Howland's. A decision will be rendered by Judge O'Brien in ten At the hotels I see the following named Pittsburgers: C. L. Magee and wife, at the Fifth Avenue; James H. Johnston, of the Exposition Society, J. H. Murdock, the Exposition Society, S. Exposition Society, S.

the Washington Tenm. ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE.1 WASHINGTON, January 19. - Billy Barnie, who has for several years past been actively identified with the Baltimore club, will probably be selected to manage the Washington team in the League during the coming season. Mr. Hewitt stated to-day that negotiations have progressed sufficiently to assure a combination of the Washington and Baltimore players of last year, and Mr. Barnie will have absolute management of the Senatorial aggregation. Mr. Hewitt says he does not propose to of last year's team, in the event of the resurve rule holding good in court. He is counting on obtaining from Baltimore Kilsroy, Griffin, Shindle, Warrick, Foreman

Porson Davies Says the Australian is Under the Weather-The Parson's Enrolegs About $32,000 on His Late European Trip. PAPRICIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.

New York, January 19 .- Parson Davies was the first passenger to place his foot on the gangway of the White Star steamship Britannie, when she arrived from Liverpool, to-night. Al Spencer was the first to shake hands with the "Parson," and then P. J. Sharkey, Johnny Saul, Al Cridge, Charley Troy, Dominick Leonard, and a number of others fought to tell him how glad they were to see him safe back in the United States. The famous negro pugilist, Peter Jackson, from Australia, was of course the chief topic of conversation, because the "Parson" is his manager. In chorus, reporters and all asked: "How did you leave Peter?"

"I'm sorry to say," replied Mr. Davies, "that I left him considerably under the weather, but it is nothing serious. The climate in old England, you know, is so bad that Peter couldn't stand it, but two weeks after he arrives here he will be all right. He will be over on the Adriatic this week some time."

"Well, tell us all about it. Will he fight Sullivan, and what kind of a time did you

"First class. We were treated royally all round. Peter will fight Sullivan for $15,000 or more, just as soon as the arrangements can be made.

Mr. Davies said that the stories about Slavin having been done up by a gang of toughs after his fight with Smith were greatly exaggerated, and that Slavin was only slightly hurt. It was a play of his to obtain sympathy, and he got it, but regarding the same of the store of the store of the same of the sam ing the gang of toughs, there were but half a dozen there, and they were afraid to harm

"Peter made friends wherever he went," continued the "Parson," as he eyed the Custom House Inspector dumping out the contents of a huge steamer trunk. "He was not hissed but once, and then it was because he refused to knock out the man he was sparring with. He let up on the fight-ing, and then the hissing began; but it only lasted a few moments, Peter stepping to the front of the stage and explaining that he would not punish his opponent any more, as he was satisfied that he had showed him-self to be the better man. In a moment the hisses were turned to cheers."

The "Parson," it is stated, cleared $32,000 on the trip, and gained for himself and Peter twice that number of friends. It of onions saturating their skins. We don't is understood that a number of members of the Pelican Club in London will send over a handsome souvenir shortly for Peter, which will be not only intrinsically valuable, but an honor seldom conferred on any pugilist.

The Five Tribes of Civilized Indian Who Want to Become Citizens-Some Important and Far-Reaching Proposed Legislation.

SPECIAL TRLEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE. WASHINGTON, January 19 .- One of the most important and far-reaching steps in Indian legislation which has ever been brought to the attention of Congress will be laid before the House to-morrow, in a bill which has been prepared by General Pleasant Porter and other representatives of the five civilized tribes of the Indian Territory who have been in Washington for some days, in attendance upon the hearings before the committees of Territories. The bill, which will be introduced by Representative Baker, of New York, who for ten days has been the chairman of the committee, provides for a complete Territorial Government for the Indian Ter-ritory, and its ultimate admission to all the rights and privileges of Statehood.

ready and anxious to become full-fledged citizens of the United States. The five a council, each tribe having also its gov-ernor, and enacting its own laws. They are ready to give up this independence and confide their interests to a governor appointed by the President, accepting also such judges and other officers as he may choose. The matter has been very carefully considered, and the Indians appreciate the step that they are taking. They are ready to allot their lands in severalty, and sell the surplus to the Government, with the understanding that all treaty rights are to be sacredly preserved."

"How long has this feeling been growing in the Territory?"
"It is comparatively of recent date, but I am given to understand that the feeling is widespread among the Indians. They do not want to be any longer subject to the designs of scheming politicians and persons. They have every qualification necessary to become citizens of a new State. BISMARCK AND THE CODE, Count Rechberg Once Challenged film, but Afterward Cooled Down.

Pall Mall Budget. ;

Ad advance copy of the third volume of Herr von Sybel's "History of the German Empire," which will be published early in January, has been received. Probably the most interesting chapters refer to the relations between Prince Bismarck and Count Rechberg, then Prussian and Aus-Embassadors respectively at German (Frankfort) Diet.

Prince Bismarck, then Herr von Bismarck Schonhausen, soon found out that Count Rechberg was bot-tempered and passionate, but in the main honorable and good-natured. Count Rechberg, on his side, cordially disliked Prussia and its asst year's New York club. Evidently he | tute representative, but did his best all the same to keep on amicable terms with his colleague. Both officially and socially there was, however, pienty of friction between the two. On one occasion things came to such a pitch that Count Rechberg, losing his self-control, passionately ex-claimed: "One of my friends shall wait on

"Why all this unnecessary delay?" Herr you Bismarck coolly replied: "In all prob-ability you have a pair of pistols handy. Let us settle the matter immediately. While you get the things ready I shall write a re-port about the whole transaction, which, in case I am killed, I request you to forward

Both set about their work. When Bis-marck had finished he handed the sheet to Count Rechberg, requesting him to examine the same. Rechberg's passion had in the meantime given way to sober reflection.

After having perused the report he said:

"That is exactly my opinion," was Bis-marck's answer, and the matter ended.

The Duke of Portland again heads the list of winners on the tur! during the past year, his gains amounting to nearly £74,-000. In 1888 he had about £27,000 to his credit, or altogether nearly £100,000 in the and kept it suspended till the carriage had two years. Of his winnings last year Donovan earned nearly £39,000. The Duke of Portland's success-which is quite unprecedented—has naturally affected considera-bly the winnings of other owners. Last year only three have won more than £10,000, compared with six in 1888. Both the Duke retain the services of more than four or five of Westminister and the Marquis of Hart-

A BANKRUPTCY BILL

That Will Meet All the Exigencies of the Situation.

THE VIEWS OF DON DICKINSON.

Many of the Measures Before Congress Now Attempt Too Much.

SOME SCHEMES NOT CONSTITUTIONAL Principles Which Should be Adhered to in Enacting

National Law.

Ex-Postmaster General Dickinson criticises some of the national bankruptcy bills now pending before Congress. Nearly all have objectionable details or are too cum-Some contain provisions which the Supreme Court has already decided sgainst.

DETROIT, MICH., Jan. 19.-Ex-Postmaster General Don M. Dickinson has decided views upon the subject of the national bankruptey bills now pending before Congress. The opinions coming from such an eminent authority upon the subject as Mr. Dickinson is admitted to be, will be of value not only to the legislators, but to the public as well.

Mr. Dickinson said: "My examination of the several bills introduced at the present session of Congress has necessarily been of a cursory character. I should say, with the exception of H. B. 3316, introduced by Mr. F. B. Taylor, that they have been somewhat hastily prepared and were merely tentative, the author probably contemplating their amplification and perfection in committee.

SOME PECULIAR PEATURES. "One of these includes corporations in its provisions, and would permit a corporation to obtain a discharge like a natural person. Another inserts a new and impracticable test of insolvency. Another assumes that the bankruptcy court would have the power to enjoin proceedings in the State courts already commenced, or afterward com-menced, of which the State court would have at least concurrent jurisdiction.

"No such power can exist in a bankrupt cy court, and cannot be conferred by act of Congress. This was settled by the Supreme Court of the United States under the last bankruptcy act. I notice in these bills pro-visions under which preferences could not be set aside unless the person preferred had notice of the intended bankruptcy. The only true test on the question of whether a preference should be set aside must, in the interest of justice, be whether the creditor receiving the preference knew at the time that the debtor was insolvent.

A CAREFULLY PREPARED BILL. "House bill 3316, above refered to, is very carefully prepared. It contains many of the excellent provisions of the Massachusetts Insolvent Act, still I am inclined to think it too elaborate and complicated. It establishes a machinery of administration which in its practical workings will develop the principal objections to the old bankruptcy law-great expenses and small dividends."

"In the history of jurisprudence no more satisfactory method of disposing of an estate has been devised, up to the present time, than that which is furnished by the equity courts and by equity procedure. I mean, of course, in cases which cannot be disposed of by agreement of parties in in-terest, which should always be permitted where possible. I think the principal ob-jects of a bankruptcy law should be as fol-First-To relieve present debtors, of which there are a large number, from existing indebt-

COMPROMISE WHEN POSSIBLE. Second-To enable the honest insolvent citizens of the United States. The driver tribes, as every one knows, represent the Choctaws, Creeks, Seminoles, Chickasaws and Cherokees. They are now governed by creditors withou being subjected to what may set aside transition fraudulent transiers of property and fraudulent preferences. All proceedings should be made to conform to chancery procedure, and thus the cumbersome and expensive, irritating and prolonged methods built up by and under the act of 1867 would be entirely avoided.

"I have given my views upon the bankruptcy law, but I can say that I don't believe any law will be passed at this session. Law-yers are against it en masse, as also are a majority probably of the jobbers of the country outside of New York."

THE WOMEN DO THE WOOING. A Province in Russia That is a Paradisc for Spinsters.

Detroit Free Press.] Ukraine, Russia, is the real paradise for the spinster. And if in this country a prototype of the Russian province could be founded it would be populated in less time than one imagines. In Ukraine, think of it, ye spinsters and celibates, all the courting is done by the women! The man has nothing to do with the affair. Like Mariana in the mosted grange, he merely sits and waits. If the young woman feels stealing o'er her a favey for a particular young man, she does a largy for a particular young man, she does not pine away in "a green and yellow melancholy." But she buckles on the armor of her affections and sallies out like a conquering hero. To drop similes and come down to matter-of-lact language, the young woman, when she falls in love with some young man, without delay discloses to him the true condition of her feelings.

Does he love her? Then the marriage ceremony is arranged without delay. Does he not love her? Then the love-sick damsel plants herself in his residence and an-nounces that she will stay there until a revolution shall come in his feelings. The young man is helpless, because the friends of the young woman will avenge any affront that the young man shall offer to her. But he is not compelled by either law or custom to endure her presence forever. When he becomes tired of the attentions of the lovepenates and move out. When the affair reaches this climax, it is equivalent to an announcement that the young man posi-

AN ELEPHANT'S SAGACITY.

He Lifts Up a Wheel, Thus Saving a Man's

Pall Mall Budget.] The stories illustrating the sagacity of the elephant are innumerable; but few are more remarkable than the following one, recorded going to the siege of Seringapatam had to cross the sandy bed of a river that resembles other rivers in the East, which leave during the summer season but a small stream of water running through them, though their beds are mostly of considerable breadth, very heavy for draught and abounding in quicksand. It happened that an artilleryman, who was seated on the tumbril of one of the guns, by some accident fell off in such a situation that in a minute or two the hind wheel must have gone over him. The elephant, which was stationed behind the gun, perceiving the predicament in which the man was, instantly, without any warning from its keeper, lifted up the wheel with its trunk, passed clear of him.

Drygoods

NEW YORK, January 18.-There was a very fair trade in drygoods for Saturday. Although fair trade in drygoods for Saturday. Although buyers in the market have not yet shown any disposition to deal actively, the improved weather has impurted a better feeling and considerable expectations. There was no change in the market. Cotton goods being well sold up are steady in price, while the continued advance in the raw material tends to present a strong outlook. The buik of the goods sold on orders are yet to be delivered. Woolens continue quiet.

CAUGHT A TARTAR.

A Constable's Posse Fired on by the Wife of a Notorious Tough-Capture of Oue of Yank Gable's Gang of Burglars.

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE. PINE GROVE, January 19.-Kossuth Bickelman, a notorious member of Yank Gable's gang of burglars, was captured at his home at Cherryville early this morning. Last Tuesday night a week ago the meat house of George Stupp, a farmer of Washington township, was robbed. Suspicion pointed to Bickelman, and Farmer Stupp placed warrants in the hands of Constable Israel Hummel, who searched Bickelman's house and found a portion of the stolen mest.

The constable tried to effect a capture. but was unsuccessful. Last night he called to his assistance George Hummel, Peter Hain, David Fisher and George Stupp, who surrounded Bickelman's house at 4 o'clock this morning, but were fired at by Mrs. Bickelman, who was standing at a window with a gun in her hand. They beat a retreat, and at 7 o'clock this morning made a second and successful visit. Mrs. Bickelman met the officers and inormed them that her husband had escaped, whereupon they threatened to take her sons. She then called her husband from his hid-ing place, and he delivered himself up. Bickelman belongs to a gang whose members have committed burglaries in Lebanon, Dauphin and Schuylhill counties. His career as a robber has extended over a period of 20 years, 18 of which have been spent in jail. He refuses to disclose who the other members of the gang arc. He was lodged in jail this afternoon. and Attempted Robbery. Tony Coreaun, an Italian who has been working on the West Penn road beyond Hoboken, was standing in front of the house occupied by Kate Fagan, on Old avenue, near High street, about 8 P. M., yesterday. He had been visiting a triend in the next house, and it is supposed, was thought to have considerable money about him, as he had been speaking about returning to Italy before long.

Suddenly he was set upon by a large crowd, which he says contained Thomas and Anna Francis, his wife, Kate Finn, Kate Fagan and Dottie McKee, who registered when arrested, as Dr. Mary Walker. The crowd pounded the unfortunate Italian with bridge ounded the unfortunate Italian with bricks, ottles and stones, in efforts he says to rob him. His chest was torn open, his hand cut badly, and his body one mass of cuts and bruises. He was removed in the ambulance to the Homeopathic Hospital, where his condition was considered exceedingly dangerous.

Detectives Shore, Robinson, McTighe and Bendel arrested the persons concerned, men-tioned above, and there are two others imlicated in the murderous attack, still at large. Very grave informations will be made against the prisoners, who are all well-known to the police and have been fre-quently in their clutches. It was thought at a later hour last night, that it was questionable if Coreann would survive his injuries.

EXPERT ELECTRICIANS.

Some Remarks Made on the Pleasant Valloy's New Cars.

The latest nine days' wonder in the shape of the electric cars on the Pleasant Valley road attracted the customary crowds yesterday, and Smithfield street was thronged at Fifth avenue on the arrival and departure of each car during the entire day. The company had promised to send its patrons DAY, January 20, at 2 P. M. Interment private church by electricity vesterday and it

The remarks of the spectators while the cars arrived and departed were more or less amusing, as it was invariably those who knew least about electricity who were most profuse in their explanations of how the thing worked. One sapient expert explained that the current was in the rails, and com-municated to the motor under the cars through the wheels, quoting the horse killed in Allegheny, which promises to be as famous as W. L. Scott's Braddock farmer, in proof of his assertion. The arm above, he said, was only a hollow guiding-wheel to make the car come up in the way it should go, and, as the catechism says, walk in the same all the days of its life. Some appeared timid of trusting themselves in the pesky thing, and thought the good, old mule power was safer, if it was slower. The remarks generally were very amusing.
